Scrambling for eggs

Crystal Beach Public School held its annual Easter egg hunt Saturday, the last one before the elementary school closes in June. Four-year-old Faithlynn Opatovsky was one of the many kids who turned out to look for treasures. For more photos of egg hunts in Fort Erie see page 24.

Region ready to rethink long-term care model

MARYANNE FIRTH
POSTMEDIA NETWORK

A business case will be created to outline options, including health-care hub concepts, for redevelopment of three long-term care homes operated by Niagara Region.

Upper Canada Lodge in Niagara-on-the-Lake and Gilmore Lodge in Fort Erie, each with 80 beds, as well as Linhaven in St. Catharines with 248 beds, are under review by the Region as they will not meet structural compliance requirements by 2025.

A task force including councillors, regional staff and industry experts, was formed in March 2015 to begin reviewing options to redevelop them.

A 144-page preliminary report, prepared by Deloitte and presented to regional council Thursday night, outlined possible directions as well as results from initial public consultation.

Redevelopment is a chance to reduce costs and make operation more efficient for the Region's long-term care beds, said Henriette Koning,

BOB TCMZYCZYN / POSTMEDIA NETWORK

The long-term care needs of seniors in Niagara are changing, and regional staff are planning changes to the way long-term care homes are operated.

the Region's director of seniors services.

Niagara's cost per bed is lower than some municipalities, at about $185 per day, but there is potential to lower that further, she told councillors.

Those decreased costs can be seen in the private and not-for-profit sectors, due partly to "improved facility strategy," she said.

Redevelopment allows Niagara to "leverage the project to gain those efficiencies as well."

By moving away from the 80-bed facility model, it's estimated the Region would see a three per cent efficiency, or $235,000 saving annually, for a 120-bed home, or five per cent or $830,000 for a 240-bed home.

According to feedback from the private and not-for-profit sectors, "no one is building facilities with less than 160 beds at this point in time," said Jason Bungers, the Region's director of procurement and strategic acquisition.

It will be up to council to decide if that's a route it would like to take, he said.

As the redevelopment process moves onto its second phase, with creation of the business case, the Region's total portfolio of long-term care facilities, as well as potential distribution options for beds, will be reviewed, he said.

Early review has identified potential for seniors housing in St. Catharines and Fort Erie, with more investigation needed in Niagara-on-the-Lake, he said.

The report says Niagara-on-the-Lake is "oversupplied" in terms of long-term care beds and does not meet demand to justify a seniors housing development. It suggests other options be explored.

The Region operates 957 long-term care beds, which are under control of the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. The province will have the final say on Niagara's redevelopment plan.

Koning said there is an "imbalance in supply and demand" when it comes to local long-term care beds.

Demand among the area's 31 facilities, of which eight are owned by the Region, is 274 people higher than the supply can accommodate, she said, and that number is projected to grow to 2,235 by 2030.

WANTED

30 PEOPLE WITH HEARING LOSS

Qualified Participants Needed for Technology Field Test

We're looking for people like you, who may be experiencing varying levels of hearing loss to evaluate a remarkable new line of digital hearing aids and a rehabilitative process that could be the solution to your difficulties. There's no cost or obligation to participate!

Call us toll-free today at one of the numbers below to see if you qualify for this Field Test. Potential candidates will be given a FREE hearing test to determine candidacy.

Participants will be given a FREE in-office demonstration, as well as the opportunity to evaluate and report their experience wearing the latest, most advanced hearing aid technology for 30 days. A full range of styles are available in this new technology, including the exceptionally discreet open-fit and invisible-in-the-canal models shown here:

Similar to choosing between contact lenses or glasses, you can decide with your hearing professional which hearing aid style would best suit you. Both styles have approximately the same performance and functions, but are fitted to the ear differently.

It's almost a shame this technology isn't more visible!

Open-fit and IIC hearing aids are smaller and more sophisticated than ever, striking the perfect balance between size and performance. The elegant and highly discreet open-fit hearing aid fits perfectly on top of your ear, and the thin tube in your ear canal is designed to disappear against your skin. The new IIC hearing aid - now with wireless technology - provides all of the outstanding features and benefits you want in a digital hearing aid, minus the stigma that came with wearing one in the past.

CALL NOW - Candidates are being selected.

The selection process for this test period will end March 31, 2016.

TASC presents Viva Las Vegas dinner and show

SARAH FERGUSON

Elvis Presley, Frank Sinatra and even dueling Celine Dions will take to the stage later this month at the Crystal Ridge Community Centre. Therapy and Alternatives for Special Children and Adults with Disabilities (TASC) assembles a cast and crew each year that puts on an April performance involving music, movement and plenty of fun, said TASC president, Nancy Kacur.

This year, the non-profit organization will host two performances of its show at the Crystal Ridge Community Centre on April 22 and 23 with doors opening at 5 p.m., and a roast beef dinner served at 6 p.m., followed by the performance. The theme is Viva Las Vegas.

"Elvis will definitely be in the building. We'll have Elton John, the Village People, battling Celine Dions and marionettes. It will be hilarious," Kacur said.

Proceeds from the show will support TASC, which was founded in 1998, and continues to offer music, drama and other programs for individuals of varying disabilities to engage with one another in an encouraging environment.

The money will be used to purchase a new portable stage.

"We've ramped it up with (the community's) help," Kacur said about last year's fundraising efforts to purchase a portable ramp.

"Thanks to the generosity of the community we have our ramp. But now we desperately need a

Q. My boyfriend wants to buy a new truck and he needs me to co-sign the loan.

• The truck is only going to be in his name. If we break up, how do I make sure I am no longer responsible to pay for his truck?

A. Before you agree to co-sign or guarantee a loan, you need to recognize that if he fails to pay for any reason, the bank is going to be looking to you for payment. They will not care that the two of you are no longer together and they will not care that you don't own the truck. By signing, you are promising the bank that you will make the payment regardless of any of these facts. You should also keep in mind that the bank is still payable regardless of the value of the truck. The best advice to you is not to sign at all. If you do decide to guarantee the loan, you should insist that you are also an owner of the truck, and insist that the bank notify you immediately if any payments are missed.

ASK THE EXPERT

Q. I have a Business Plan. Why do I need to monitor the plan?

A. Sometimes the best plans go off track. One way of preventing this is to monitor your business plan regularly. Each month you should compare actual results with your cash flow projections. If you are not meeting your objectives, what options are open to you? Do you know which expenses can be reduced and how soon you need to react? What additional revenue or capital sources, if any, are available to you? What is your break-even point? Do you have a handle on the critical sales level needed to cover your overhead, after which you start earning real profits? Rapid growth exceeding projections can be a mixed blessing. How can this growth be financed? How are you going to cope with a downturn in the economy? Do you keep up to date with economic trends and conditions? You should communicate closely with your lender, including keeping them informed on a monthly basis with the information you have agreed to provide.

Q. Are there alternatives to filing bankruptcy?

A. Last month I discussed recognizing the danger signs of credit problems. You, there are alternatives to consider before one files bankruptcy. I would advise bankruptcy as a last resort. The establishing credit after a bankruptcy can be difficult and information about bankruptcy could show up on your credit rating for 6 to 7 years or longer.

Alternatives

- Contact and negotiate lower payments with creditors.
- Credit counselling can help in many ways including budgeting and creditor negotiation.
- Debt consolidation loan can combine debts and lower payments.
- Consumer proposal is a formal procedure under the bankruptcy and Insolvency Act whereby you can reduce debts, extend the time to pay off debts or both.

Always obtain professional advice. Our firm offers free initial consultations.

The
Fort Erie Times

Peter Conradi regional editor
Sarah Ferguson editor

Journalism student "excited" about writing for hometown paper

Last February, I attended a flag-raising at Fort Erie Town Hall where I met Sarah Ferguson, the editor of the Fort Erie Times, for the first time.

I told her I had just entered Niagara College's journalism program and I was really excited to learn the ropes of the field.

There, Sarah told me she'd love to have me join her on my placement, the time when students get to use the skills they have learned.

More than a year later, I'm here and incredibly thrilled about the opportunity granted to me.

You may have seen my name in this paper before. Last summer, I freelanced for the Fort Erie Times, mostly covering the Fort Erie Cannons senior men's baseball team, but also other local events.

During the month of April, I'll be covering a wide range of topics and events for the weekly newspaper.

AUSTIN GOODER
Reporter's notebook

I first entertained the idea of being a journalist when I briefly wrote for an online stats-based Toronto Blue Jays blog. I wrote a series of articles that used 'sabermetrics' to analyze baseball players.

From this, I developed a passion for finding stories in the details.

As a Fort Erie boy, I'm looking forward to writing for the Fort Erie Times because I believe this town has stories to be told.

Our town's stories aren't any less important than anywhere else's. We're a small community, but we're a community that has a unique passion for the place they live.

This passion plays out in the stories we tell and the things we share, and getting to be a part of that is a truly exciting thing.

After high school, I moved to Guelph to study English Literature.

It was a mistake, but it's not something I regret. University taught me a tough lesson about the real world.

So when I started in the journalism program at Niagara College, and when I felt a genuine love for what I was studying, I knew those mistakes I'd made in the past were finally paying off.

They say journalism will kill you, but it will keep you alive along the way. So far it's been true. It's not an easy field, but it's one I live and breathe for.

I hope when you read my work over the coming weeks that you can sense my love for this profession.

And I sincerely hope you enjoy what you read.

Austin Gooder is a Niagara College Journalism-Print student.

Do you remember

Last week's photo taken at St. John's Lutheran Church, Snyder shows left to right, Pastors Lawrence Eilert and Howard Kuhl with Willis Mackey, chairman of the congregation. Our thanks to church members Myra Arnold, Doris Lapp and Larry Wale for sharing their fond memories. Myra's father, Walter Besenthal was pastor from 1946 to 1957 and was followed by Pastor Kuhl. Doris tells us that Rev. Kuhl baptized both her daughter Nancy in 1962 and her son Peter in 1969. This photo may have been taken at Pastor Eilert's installation sometime after 1969. We always look forward to finding an April Fool's photo in the collection. Mother animals become aggressive protectors when their young is threatened Righteous anger? What are you talking about, Plato?

I want to give you another view of one of our so-called gentle animals.

In nature some animals erupt into an offensive mood if their young are threatened. That's right—the mother—the female of a species. What would turn the normally passive nature of a cottontail mother into an aggressive protector? Is it right for a mother rabbit to be angry, even ferocious, when their young are in danger? Of course. Following is a true scenario from nature writer, Ed Teale, of such a case.

At the edge of the yard on this farm, a mother rabbit had made her nest. One day, as the owner of the farm looked that way he saw a cottontail catch sight of a large blacksnake weaving through the grass toward the fur-lined depression containing her young. On that instant she bounded to meet the advancing serpent. When she was almost upon it she leaped into the air passing over the snake and lashing out with her hind feet.

The serpent writhed and struck blindly. Again and again the mother cottontail attacked, nailing the serpent's body with the claws of its hind feet. Long red scratches appeared on the shining length of the black snake. Whenever it swung toward the nest the cottontail—usually so timid. Usually so peaceful—renewed her "hit-and-run" attack. They ended only when the bleeding reptile crawled away—leaving the baby cottontails unharmed within their nest."

Writer's Note: Have you seen a blacksnake lately? They are not common locally and not venomous. At the Virginia Live Animal Center several years ago a large blacksnake, over three feet long, was passed to me by one of the Grade 8 students. It was a beautiful specimen almost 19 years old, we were told by a staff member. After I admired it I passed it on.

Dry and cool in our hands, yes. All four of us Canadians—Earl, Bud, Harold, and Ed held the impressive snake. This was the same kind of snake that eats birds' eggs in tree nests and little rabbits.

Mothers are there to deter them if they can. Remember Mother's Day this year. Remember not to anger your mother!

Edwin May Teale continued: "As we watch, we see the birds tear apart and toss about the brown lumps of the fallen fruit. Apple seeds form one of their favorite foods in the years when they come south. As they feed, their movements appear deliberate. And as we work closer, advancing cautiously a slow step at a time. We learn something else about them. This is their exceptional tameness. A soft, short whistle a kind of "Cheeee" that shows their relationship to the other finches,

A blacksnake, continually from among the feeding grosbeaks. This call has been described as having a little roll in it. The full song of the males, the song of their breeding time, is said to resemble that of the purple finch but to be wilder and sweeter. It is a melody made up of warbles, whistles, and trills. It is sometimes loud, sometimes soft, sometimes ventriiloquial. A quarter of an hour goes by while we watch these visitors from the north. Suddenly, as though on signal, they all take off together. Watch your birds this spring.

Earl Plato is a resident of Fort Erie, local historian and nature lover.

too. Whatever your space allowance is, you can either create a container that is home to veggies and edible flowers, or a hanging basket that continues to bloom and be available for harvest. Here are a few suggestions of combinations:

For a container that stands on steps or patio: plant 1 tarragon, 2 dill, 2 parsley, 3 lemon variegated thyme, 4 variegated pansies. Harvesting this one is a feast for the scents and Pansy flowers are pretty and edible as well.

Another container that is least worthy is: 1 borage, 3 leaf lettuce, 4 alpine strawberry plants... this ever bearing container can last a long time, to be enjoyed in the summer's longer days.

Our favorite container is one we like to call "Bellissimo" Planting 1 or 2 patio tomatoes in the centre of the container to be staked up as they grow. Surrounded by a nice mixture of oregano, Italian parsley, one garlic plant and chives as well as basil. Place 2 dwarf marigolds in for colour and the blossoms will enhance your table. Not only will this container remain fragrant as it grows, it will be a lasting reminder to dry some of those herbs for use in the winter seasoning.

Hanging baskets can do the work of two. Some suggestions for combined feeding and beauty are:

Lettuce and Lobelia: use the half the hanging basket for mixed lettuce seed, then plant pale blue lobelia in the other half. Allow these to grow together and they will not only sustain each other, but you can harvest the lettuce and enjoy the colour of the lobelia all summer.

Peas in a Pod: Plant dwarf sweet peas and dwarf peas seeds in an alternating ring around the inside of the basket. Peas are not fond of transplanting, so place them in a hanging basket along with sweet peas will bring food and eye delight all summer.

Tumbling Toms: plant red and yellow Tom tomatoes on either side of basket, plant parsley in the middle. Plant between the Tom tomatoes black eyed susans that will trail. You can also try this mixture in a container, but I would add a red and green sweet pepper for harvesting. Lots of fun planting times ahead. These are just some ideas to get those creative juices flowing.

Have a lovely and safe week, everyone. Keep enjoying those walks along the trails and along the Lake. And as always...

Keep growing!

Ruth Vold Markle is the vice-president of the Fort Erie Horticultural Society.

A spring has now officially arrived we have the opportunity to see what winter and the snow has hidden.

Last autumn I followed the new advice and let the dried blooms and grasses stay in the outside space for the winter creatures to feed on. There is a reason spring cleaning is so often done in the spring.

Looking at the dust that has accumulated and can now be seen in the sunshine rays through the windows (that need washing) and the remains of the dried garden leavings, I'm eager to clean the spaces up and start fresh. Some of you have already done this and know the satisfaction in this new start.

It's easy to see why the colour green is so associated with clean and spring. The grounds are greening each day and the new season is visible in this green. A week or too ago one of the teachers at school reminded me that the bulbs are growing each day and soon we will see colour as well as the greens of ground and yellow of early tree growth. I am reminded at the winding down of this month of the old rhyme we were taught: "March winds, April showers bring lovely May flowers..."

At month's end we will see approximately 12 and a half hours of daylight, but at the end of April that will have increased to almost 14 hours. April is traditionally the time to plant in tree and shrub seedlings and to clean up and if the ground is warm enough, to transplant perennials. This is my time to clean out and tidy the hostas and begin the process of propagating them. And this is the time to plant and layout new spaces for herbs and vegetables. Even if it is early to plant them, a plan can be made to implement later!

I can't begin to tell how much fun the Garden Sprouts Club is. We teach from the greenhouse and the children are so eager and interested in the growing and learning. They are the future growers, botanists and horticulturalists. Learning and growing is such an exciting experience for children, we somehow have to maintain that pleasure all our lives.

Concentrating on feeding ourselves as we must do, we can combine some eye pleasure with hunger pleasure

Answering the call to help those in need

I started with a call by Pope Francis to the parishes of Europe to take in Syrian refugees, to help them, to aid in their much-needed resettlement.

The call reached beyond the borders of Europe to our own community. Kathryn Mistry and Father Patrick of St Michael's Roman Catholic church heard that calling and held a town hall meeting last September to discuss the possibility of sponsoring one Syrian family to come to Fort Erie.

The initial meetings went well and had a small group of people in attendance but now there are approximately 40 people directly involved in the committee. The outcome of the meetings and planning sessions have been to develop a plan with the finance committee, creating a sponsorship pledge, and receiving money from the parish to sponsor a refugee family.

Recently, the church was made aware of the possibility that another parish in Pennsylvania would not be able to bring families into their community but were trying to find churches near the border that would be able to have a family settle in their community.

St Michael's was able and willing and now they will be sponsoring two families who may arrive by the summer to settle in Fort Erie. There has been a generally positive feeling towards supporting two families and there are even some Arabic speakers among the committee who will be able to help interpret and bridge cultural gaps.

St Michael's has a long history of welcoming the stranger, with its ties to Casa El Norte and the newcomer community of Fort Erie going back to the 1980s. With St Michael's leading the way in sponsoring Syrian refugee families, people from other denominations are also becoming involved in the committee, wanting to ensure that there is enough financial, social, and spiritual support available when the families arrive.

The committee and other volunteers will help meet the financial, housing, educational, and social needs of these families that are coming by connecting them with the proper supporting agencies.

Housing will depend on when the families arrive and the committee will be given a window of time to prepare, which may be quite short depending upon the circumstances.

Short-term settlement in the community may mean staying at Casa El Norte, should there be available space at the time of arrival, or possibly staying with people who have volunteered to take the families in should the need arise.

Those families who have expressed interest would have to pass through a screening process from the government.

Longer term settlement in the Fort Erie community would hopefully see the family settling here, choosing their accommodations, schools, places of worship, and generally having a clear understanding and say in what they would feel would suit them. It is a communal process in that members of the Fort Erie community support, set up, and support, and the sponsored family is encouraged to choose how to begin the important next steps in their journey so that they are active participants.

At this time, the families being sponsored are not known, as the government has not yet published the list of families. According to Father Patrick, St Michael's is using the Blended Visa Office Referred program, which addresses the needs of those who are at greater risk and need.

The program matches refugees identified by the UNHCR to Canadian private sponsors. To sponsor a family of four is typically around $30,000 but with the BVOR program, it is $30,000 for two families as the government pays the other half of the sponsorship fee. To this point, St Michael's has raised over $30,000 and the government refugee co-ordinator and Father Patrick are working together to ensure they have everything necessary so that when the list of families is out, they are ready for the selection process.

Father Patrick and Kathryn believe that having these families settle into the Fort Erie community is a blessing to our community and that it will bring our community closer together. Father Patrick stated that this particular sponsorship crosses denominations and lines of religion in that everyone has something to give and that all are welcome to give as called.

The Syrian refugee crisis has generated many things globally, some negative and some positive, but here in Fort Erie, Kathryn says that it has generated generosity connected to human situation; it is opening horizons to a new culture that shares gifts and cultural experiences with the community.

By helping newcomers in Fort Erie and sponsoring these families, Kathryn and Father Patrick believe that St Michael's is creating the opportunity to have personal encounters that will reduce fear of the 'other'.

There is no 'other' if we see each other as neighbours and soon to be friends.

The Danger of a Cracked Tooth

Do you remember the last time your dentist recommended a crown for your tooth with a large filling in it? Recent studies have shown that your dentist was right all along.

Dr. John Inigo

In this study, scientists measured the amount of force needed to break teeth with different sized fillings. The teeth in this study ranged from ones with no filling to ones with fillings that are 1/4 of the width of the tooth, as well as 1/3 and 1/2 of the width of the tooth.

You will be shocked at what they have found. They discovered that when a filling in a tooth exceeds 1/2 of the width of the tooth, you will be 3 to 4 times more likely to break the tooth.

Now, this does not mean you will break all of these largely filled teeth. However, it means that when you have a large filling, you are at a significantly higher risk for a tooth fracture or a crack.

Here is the concern. When you wait for a tooth to break, there is a possibility that your dentist may not be able to fix that tooth. Even if the tooth is fixable, the underlying tooth structure could be damaged where by the longevity of that tooth would be reduced.

If you happen to crack a tooth (rather than fracture the tooth), the problem is more significant. A crack, once it starts, cannot be stopped. Sometimes these cracks can run down to the nerve of the tooth or the bone, which makes it extremely difficult to fix and can cause some serious discomfort. Unfortunately, a lot of the cracked teeth end up being extracted.

Here is the good news. Some of these weak teeth can be effectively protected with full coverage restorations (crowns, onlays, caps) which of the teeth. Since there are less wedging effects compared to fillings, these restorations can give long lasting treatment options for your largely restored, structurally weak teeth. The key is to get these type of restorations earlier rather than later, before the cracks occur.

Community champions serve up hot meals

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

Mayor Wayne Redekop took some time last week to deliver piping-hot meals to a handful of Fort Erie's residents.

He was one of a number of community leaders including fire Chief Larry Coplen to make special deliveries last Wednesday with Meals on Wheels volunteers in honour of March for Meals Community Champions Week.

Nancy Ryan, executive director of Meals on Wheels, said she was grateful to have well-known leaders in the community participate in the event.

Although some Meals on Wheels clients might "get a little nervous" to have community leaders deliver their meals, the nervousness quickly disappears.

"(Community Champions Week) is a special week," Ryan said.

"When our clients meet the community leaders, that nervousness goes away and all of a March For Meals is a nationwide event, organized by Meals on Wheels America.

March for Meals has been celebrated in the U.S. for the last 14 years. Fort Erie Meals on Wheels has been participating in the event for eight years.

to elderly, disabled and home bound residents for more than 43 years. Last year, the program delivered more than 18,000 meals.

In order to continue to serve the needs of the community, Ryan said Meals on Wheels couldn't do what it does without the support of its volunteers.

"We have amazing volunteers. Without the volunteers we'd have no program. Many say to me volunteering gives them a warm fuzzy feeling.

They feel joy when they deliver and that's why they keep coming back."

For the many people who use Meals on Wheels, the volunteer who brings them their meals is "the only person they'll see that day."

"Many times, our clients have families that live far away so it's also a security check. That security check is as important as that nutritious meal."

Mayors' co-operation is limited

ALLAN BENNER
Postmedia Network

While celebrating their non-parochial approach to issues like inter-municipal transit and industrial growth, the mayors of seven Niagara municipalities apparently draw the line when it comes to hospital services.

"We at the Region are getting along better than has ever happened before," said Niagara Falls Mayor Jim Diodati.

"We don't have the parochialism that was once there. We're making a lot of decisions about what's best for the region, not what looks best for our community."

Diodati was joined by mayors of Welland, Pelham, Wainfleet, Port Colborne and Fort Erie during the Southern Tier Mayors' Luncheon last Tuesday at the Italian Hall in Port Colborne.

"Finally, we're rolling the bones together," Diodati said during the event, organized by chambers of commerce representing the seven communities.

The combined effort of Nigara's municipalities to bring GO rail service to Niagara is a prime example of that teamwork, he added.

But differences of opinion were apparent when the mayors were asked their perspective on the future of health care in the communities.

And after hearing some strong opinions opposing plans for south Niagara hospitals, Diodati — a vocal supporter of the project that would close local hospitals in favour of building a new one in the outskirts of his city — opted against answering the question at all.

"I live on Morgan's Point. To St. Catharines, it's 50 minutes," said Wainfleet Mayor April Jeffs. "To the proposed site (of a new south Niagara hospital) it's 45 minutes. I just don't think that's acceptable. I think it almost comes down in some instances to a human rights issue. We deserve adequate access to care."

Welland Mayor Frank Campton said the objective of his city is to ensure that "all residents of particularly south Niagara have equitable access to hospital care."

"We may disagree from municipality to municipality, but from our perspective in Welland we need to have a hospital," Campton said as an audience of about 200 people applauded. "We need to ensure that we have a hospital for a variety of reasons.

The health care aspect is very important, but economic development is important as well."

Fort Erie Mayor Wayne Redekop said he continues to struggle with changes that have taken place in health care during the past 17 years, but he added that the focus needs to be on making sure residents have access to the health care they need.

"It really doesn't matter if it's in this building or that building, or whether it's called a hospital or an urgent care centre, or something else ... What's important to an individual who needs help is: Can I get it? Can I get it in a timely fashion, and without a lot of difficulty?" he said.

"I know this is a difficult subject for all of us to talk about. I'm quite pleased that we haven't been punching each other, so far."

SPCA, firefighters rescue dog from bathtub drain

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

Thanks to the quick thinking of volunteer firefighters, members of the Fort Erie SPCA and Dr. Nabeel Al-Azawi, a young dog is safe.

Last Monday, the Fort Erie SPCA and the Fort Erie Fire Department responded to an unusual call for help.

“The dog was having a bath when he backed up and got his paw stuck in the drain,” Wendy Trombley, the animal shelter’s manager, said.

“The fire department was called in, we were called in. We all tried to get the dog’s paw unstuck. We had to call Dr. Nabeel from the animal hospital to help.”

The veterinarian administered a sedative to the animal to help calm him so firefighters could remove part of the drain, allowing the dog’s back right foot to be free.

“The dog was a terrier, about three or four years old,” Trombley said. “His foot was a little red when we left but he was completely fine.”

Trombley said she has never heard of a similar incident occurring before.

“This is something that people should be aware of. It’s possible that something like this can happen and people need to be aware of obstacles that can potentially hurt animals,” Trombley said.

Trombley wishes to thank

NOTICE OF CONSTRUCTION START

Part A – Replacement of the QEW Bridges at Black Creek

Part B – Replacement / Rehabilitation of the QEW Bridges at Tee and Lyons Creeks Design-Build Contract #2014-2036

Dufferin Construction Company has been retained by the Ontario Ministry of Transportation (MTO) to complete the construction for the following projects:

- The replacement of the QEW bridges at Black Creek (Part A); and
- The replacement / rehabilitation of the QEW bridges at Tee and Lyons Creeks (Part B).

Part A – Replacement of the QEW Bridges at Black Creek

Part A involves the replacement of the Queen Elizabeth Way (QEW) northbound and southbound bridges at Black Creek. The Black Creek bridges are located in the Town of Fort Erie, Niagara Region as shown in the key plan. Part A followed the Class Environmental Assessment (EA) for Provincial Transportation Facilities (2000) process for a Group “B” project.

Part B – Replacement / Rehabilitation of the QEW Bridges at Tee and Lyons Creeks

Part B involves the replacement of the QEW northbound and southbound bridges at Lyons Creek; and the replacement of the QEW northbound bridge and rehabilitation of the QEW southbound bridge at Tee Creek. The Tee Creek and Lyons Creeks bridges are located in the City of Niagara Falls, Niagara Region, as shown in the key plan. Part B followed the Class Environmental Assessment (EA) for Provincial Transportation Facilities process for a Group “C” project.

Traffic Staging / Detours

Construction is anticipated to commence in Spring 2016 and be completed by the end of the 2017 construction season, with a shutdown period over the winter months. The proposed construction strategy includes the replacement / rehabilitation of the QEW southbound bridges at Tee, Lyons and Black Creek in 2016 and the replacement of the northbound bridges in 2017. The QEW will be reduced to one lane in each direction at the bridge sites during construction.

Temporary closure of the west-to-south ramp at the Netherby Road Interchange will be required in each construction season, with alternate access provided via Netherby Road and Sodom Road. At the Lyons Creek Interchange, ramps to the southbound QEW and from the northbound QEW will be temporarily closed in each construction season and it is anticipated that the west-to-north ramp will be temporarily closed for the 2017 construction season, with alternate access provided via McLeod Road and Sodom Road. Advance notice of road closures will be signed.

Be a super hero for kids in need

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

Come dressed as your favourite super hero or villain.

Limited tickets are available for a super hero and villain-themed party to be held on Sunday, April 16 at Royal Canadian Legion Branch 71 in Fort Erie.

Proceeds from the event will support Eva's Voice of Angels, a Fort-Erie based charity that supports children battling cancer and their families.

"The dinner party is a lot of fun," Eva's founder Cassandra Harrietha said.

When people purchase their tickets, they'll be assigned a random super hero or villain that they will have to come dressed up as.

Now in its fifth year, the event has raised more than $10,000 for McMaster Children's Hospital. The charity also gives a scholarship to a graduating high school student in financial need that is pursuing post secondary education.

Harrietha began the charity as a way to honour her grandmother, Eva Fyke, who lost her battle with ovarian cancer.

Tickets to the themed dinner are $20 and must be purchased in advance. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. Afterward, the doors will open to the public at 9 p.m. Festivities will include a live performance from Guilty Pleasures along with prizes, raffles and more.

If people would like to attend the event after the dinner, admission is $10 per person.

For more information call Harrietha at 289-697-3433.

FESS/SPECIAL TO THE FORT ERIE TIMES
Nicole Mathes and Jacy Copeland have each accepted $12,000 scholarships to study mathematics at Carleton University.

FESS students rewarded for their hard work

FORT ERIE SECONDARY SCHOOL
Special to the Fort Erie Times

Most people have some difficulty with it. Many absolutely fear it. Some have called it the discipline of 'A Beautiful Mind.'

But for two students at Fort Erie Secondary School, the study of mathematics is both their passion and a ticket to a very promising future.

Nicole Mathes and Jacy Copeland have each accepted $12,000 scholarships to study mathematics at Carleton University.

For Copeland, studying mathematics brings "an enjoyment... when solving math equations."

"I have always found the subject to be an engaging hobby. I feel that by pursuing the subject further, I can enhance my skills in it," Copeland said.

"My hope is to use the knowledge I receive from my program to create art using equations and to use math as a teachable subject for when I apply to Teacher's College in the future."

Mathes is entering the Bachelor of Commerce with a concentration in the Accounting Program at Carleton.

"I feel confident that I can be successful in that field. Being skilled in math enables one to excel in so many different fields. I plan to become a Chartered Accountant after my program. I learned that Carleton has one of the best programs for preparing you for the Chartered Accountant testing that I would have to take," she said.

The Mathematics program at FESS, under the leadership of Department Head Deanna Ward, has become widely known for its expertise and achievement, with students placing at or near the top in standardized assessments. It is not uncommon for Niagara Area students to transfer to FESS in order to take more advanced math courses which are offered.

According to Ward, "You have to use math in so many areas of life. Taxes, software design, landscaping, logistics planning the list goes on and on. Students who master mathematics skills get a terrific start in their postsecondary education here, and use those skills to land high paying, challenging, and rewarding careers in the future."

Web-based ride matching service rolls out

ALISON LANGLEY
POSTMEDIA NETWORK

A new approach to carpooling has arrived in Niagara.

Niagara Ride Share, a free web-based ride matching service, virtually connects people living in the same neighbourhood so they can share a ride to work, school or appointments.

"It connects commuters to the community," said Carla Stout, transit program manager with the Town of Fort Erie.

The concept is simple. Participants register at www.niagararideshare.ca and enter their driving preferences and destinations.

After that, the system matches participants with other people who are close by and going to the same place at the same time.

There are no fees involved, however, participants can negotiate with each other to split the cost of gas if they choose.

A Brock University student from Fort Erie, for example, whose schedule matches that of another Brock student from Fort Erie can make a connection on the Niagara Ride Share website to get to and from school.

"And, someone from Niagara Falls working in Fort Erie and returning at the same time that someone from Fort Erie is starting their shift in Niagara Falls can make a connection," Stout said.

Rhonda Barron, a health promoter at Bridges Community Health Centre in Fort Erie, said the two-year pilot program will be beneficial to residents – and the environment.

"You'll bring down your gas expenditures, save wear and tear on your vehicle and it's also great for the environment because you're reducing your carbon footprint," she said.

The financial savings can be significant, Barron said. A taxi from Fort Erie to Niagara Falls, for example, costs about $40.

"The cost of living for a family of four in Niagara is just over $65,000," Barron said.

"Some of the largest expenses are transportation and child care. If we can't increase wages, we need to look at opportunities to save money and transportation costs are a key piece of that."

Stout and Barron began investigating the possibility of launching a ride share program in Niagara after researching a similar program in London, Ont.

That program began in 2007 and recently expanded to include surrounding rural communities.

Organizers are quick to point out that Niagara Ride Share is not Uber, through which consumers submit a trip request on a smart phone which is then routed to drivers who use their own cars.

"With Uber, you contact a driver and they come and pick you up and charge you a fee," Stout said.

"That is a ride hail service. This is a ride share service where carpoolers come together."

The service, funded through a grant from Niagara Prosperity Initiative and supported by Bridges and the Town of Fort Erie, was launched last month.

Taralen McLean, executive director at Bridges, said the new program is also a way for people to give back to their community.

"There are many people without a car who could benefit from a lift to an appointment, event or visiting a family member," she said. "They may live around the corner from you and their destination is close to yours."

Falls Avenue Resort was one of the first employers to register for the service as a way to assist existing and prospective employees in getting to and from work.

Employers, institutions and organizations can contact Barron at 905-871-7621 ext. 2226 to have their organization added to the site.

Niagara Falls mayor says transit falls short

Redekop said the challenge for municipal leaders is to tell residents that what they had in the past isn't going to be what they're going to get in the future.

There are different ways to meet their needs, and we have to show leadership on this," she said.

Said Pelham Mayor Dave Augustyn: "I think it's important for us to continue to evolve with health care as it evolves."

He said Pelham is focused on developing a new medical complex with five to 10 family doctors, plus allied professionals. Also, we're focusing on an active community."

Port colborne deputy mayor bea Kenny pointed out that Mayor John Maloney, who is recovering from a mild stroke, has been meeting with campion and Jeffs on a regular basis to discuss the plans for hospital services.

She said her city is also focusing on community medical services, working with local doctors to recruit family physicians.

"We have been promised that somewhere in the city of Port colborne there will be a ucc, so that's what we're counting on," she said.

Despite the disagreement about health care, there were a few other examples of teamwork among niagara municipalities.

Niagara Falls, st. catharines and Welland, for instance, are working together towards the development of a regional transit system - something campion called "another show of co-operation of the municipalities within the region."

Campion called regional transit "a prerequisite in the fight against poverty."

"We need to have regional transit! We have a mobile workforce. We have people living in Port colborne or Welland, who can get a job working in niagara Falls or st. catharines, or vice versa. if they can't get to their job, we will continue to have that cycle of poverty."

Diodati said current regional transportation initiatives fall short of meeting needs.

"Two hours to get between communities or to get to institutions is unreasonable," diodati said. "It's not good enough. We're going to come up with something that's efficient, that's effective, that's going to move people around the region."

The luncheon was filmed by TVcoeco.

BOGGIO'S DONATION TO UNITED WAY

Port Colborne, Ont. - Today at 11 a.m., Boggio Family of Pharmacies showed their support for United Way of South Niagara when Larry, Aaron, Kyle and Carly Boggio, and Donnie Edwards presented a cheque for $20,000 to the organization.

"We are so proud that we are able to help an organization that does so much for the communities of South Niagara," said Donnie Edwards, Co-Owner at Boggio & Edwards Pharmacy in Ridgeway, Ontario. "We want to ensure that we are able to help the communities we are located in as much as possible."

The group presented United Way of South Niagara's Desmaie Pope and President David Hawkins at the Boggio Family of Pharmacies' Port Colborne location with a cheque for $20,000. Staff members at Boggio Family of Pharmacies' four locations make donations on dress-down days throughout the year and the owners match the funds.

"After matching our staff donations, we planned on donating just over $15,000 to United Way of South Niagara this year," said Larry Boggio, Owner of Boggio Family of Pharmacies. "When we heard that the charity was shy of its annual fundraising goal, myself and the other owners decided to increase the donation to $20,000."

"We are so grateful to have such amazing staff that helped us make this donation happen," added Kyle Boggio, Co-Owner at Boggio Fonthill Pharmacy.

United Way recently reported that they may not meet their annual $850,000 fundraising goal. Lack of funds would put program funding at risk, something that the Boggio Family of Pharmacies do not want to see happen.

"We hope that other companies will also be inspired to help United Way of South Niagara during this crucial time," said Aaron Boggio, Co-Owner at Boggio & MacKinnon Pharmacy in Niagara Falls, Ontario. "When businesses donate, they are ultimately supporting the communities that support their business."

Boggio Family of Pharmacies began serving the Niagara region when they opened Boggio Pharmacy in Port Colborne in 1983. Boggio Family of Pharmacies now have stores in Niagara Falls, Fonthill and Ridgeway as well and look forward to serving the Niagara region with exceptional and thorough customer service in the years to come.

Niagara Region is rethinking the long-term care services it offers seniors as it studies the future of three of its facilities.

Feedback from survey shows 30 minutes should be maximum time to reach long-term care home

The province, she added, has not indicated plans to provide Niagara with additional beds.

The profile of seniors within the region has changed significantly over the past decade too, Koning said.

The number of seniors dependent on a wheelchair or walker has increased to 75 per cent in 2014, from 29 per cent in 2007, and those diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease or related dementia have increased to 66 per cent in 2014 from 21 per cent 2007.

That growth trend is expected to continue, she said.

The preliminary report says a hub model, similar to ones touted by the task force in other areas of Ontario, makes sense for Niagara.

Each hub would be unique to its respective community, Burgess said, with potential to include services such as a pharmacy, assisted living, memory care and independent supportive-living seniors housing.

Earlier in 2016, an extensive public engagement process included a statistically valid phone survey, with 600 people contacted, an Internet survey for the general public and six third-party moderated focus groups including facility residents and their families, industry stakeholders and the general public.

Burgess said it was "clear across the board" that people don't want just a long-term care facility, but a hub that offers other services on site as well.

Results of the phone survey indicated 57 per cent of residents would give priority to having fewer long-term care facilities with a broader range of services, over more locations with the current level of service, he said.

One focus group was conducted at Linhaven, where loved ones of residents spoke about liking the "small feel" of the facility, Burgess said. What they didn't realize, he added, is that Linhaven is Niagara's largest, and one of the province's largest, long-term care homes.

It shows, he said, that a facility can "feel like home" with the right staff and design features, regardless of its size.

Feedback also suggests 77 per cent of people feel 30 minutes is the maximum length of time they'd be willing to drive to reach a care facility.

Those time constraints, Burgess said, will be considered by the task force going forward.

Welland councillor Paul Grenier, who chairs the Association of Municipalities of Ontario long-term care task force, supports the hub model.

The Region, he said, needs to come up with policy that "treats this not in isolation as long-term care, but as effectively a health-care delivery and housing issue as well."

"We need to adjust our line of thought," he said, asking the Region embrace the concept of a "continuum of care."

When facilities were built in the past, they were constructed with people expected to be housed for only a few years. That has changed, he said, with seniors living in the system for upward of 20 years.

"We need to wrap our head around that," Grenier said, including the capital and service delivery costs that come with it.

"I see this as being a good first step in Niagara being ahead of the curve for many other municipalities across Ontario that have to deal with this issue."

Pelham Mayor Dave Augustyn was "intrigued" by the hub concept, which contrasts past trends he said seemed to segregate long-term care facilities from the community.

That method was not good from a planning or social perspective, he said, adding the new model seems more promising.

Burgess said council will get to set the priorities for redevelopment, including different options for hubs and the sizes of facilities in the detailed business case. It will also review in detail various shortlisted capital procurement options as well as the costs and risk assumptions associated with each.

The preliminary report identified the redevelopment project as a suitable fit for alternative service delivery, otherwise known as a public-private partnership delivery model.

Some local examples of various ASD projects include the Meridian Centre and new hospital in St. Catharines, as well as the Fallsview Casino in Niagara Falls.

Brock partners with Canadian Motor Speedway

POSTMEDIA NETWORK

Canadian Motor Speedway (CMS) has partnered with Brock University for research that will lay the groundwork for "economic and cultural benefits" to Niagara, according to Brock vice-president of research Gary Libben.

"This agreement creates opportunities for Brock researchers and students, the Canadian Motor Speedway and the surrounding community," he says.

The partnership will focus on research with the faculty of applied health sciences to start, possibly developing projects with the environmental sustainability research centre, BioLine and The Goodman School of Business.

"Right now the first step is economic," says Brock's sport management associate professor Julie Stevens. "If you get some basic event information, you can go and find how many competitors and attendees those typically have and use those numbers to project what the economic impact would be on Niagara."

CMS marketing and sponsorship executive Claire MacSweeney — a Brock graduate — says the research will better form the calendar for the speedway being constructed in Fort Erie.

"As a multi-sports and entertainment venue, CMS will have a diverse year-round calendar of events. Collaboration in sport marketing and sustainability in sports will benefit Brock University research, CMS operations, sponsor engagement and the fan experience at CMS."

Jews and Gypsies were prominent in this church in early years, integrating and intermarrying with Evangelical and Reformed folk, even while the Lutherans and Catholics were preparing to withdraw from their own churches. Hebrew and Roma family names became anglicized over the years, as may be seen in stained glass window inscriptions, Morgenson becoming Morningstar, and Lee from the usual Gypsy name of Leek. New Canadians from every corner of the globe today have a choice to maintain their cultures, to assimilate, or both in balanced measure, as do the ethnic varieties one finds at worship every Sunday in the still multicultural congregation which includes a scattering of native, African, Indian and Oriental cultures at St. John's-Stevensville United Church. Sunday worship service 11:00 am; only minutes to Sodom Rd, Ft. Erie, just north of Stevesville, Q5W exits 16 & 17.

Battle at the Fort comes to the Leisureplex on April 9

ANNIE PASQUARIELLO
Special to the Fort Erie Times

Daybol-Pascuzzi Jiu-Jitsu along with 1812 and The Underground Combat series will be hosting Battle at the Fort.

This Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) event will help support local fighters and has been bringing something new to Fort Erie. Battle at the Fort will be held on April 9 at the Leisureplex.

A similar event held in January was a success with a sold out venue.

Sam Pascuzzi, owner of Daybol-Pascuzzi Jiu-Jitsu in Fort Erie says he is trying to educate people in the area about MMA through events like the upcoming Battle at the Fort.

"It's a great sport. People think it is violent but there is so much safety involved by the refs, the medics and strict rules for the fighters."

The event will include typical MMA style fighting such as cage fighting, kick boxing, jiu-jitsu and muay thai along with live music and Brimstone Beer.

FULL PHOTO SPECIAL TO THE FORT ERIE TIMES

Joey Lieder, left, from Fort Erie, has an arm bar move on his opponent, Omid Male, in this picture. Male won by submission after Lieder took an accidental kick to the head earlier in fight.

Bryan Agoston, Brandon Michaud and Corey Potts are three local fighters who will be participating in the event and fighting against out of town competitors.

Pascuzzi says a live event is much different than watching MMA on TV and much more exciting.

"This will be a great event with world champion fighters"

Tickets are $25 per person and can be purchased in advance at Daybol-Pascuzzi Jiu Jitsu in Fort Erie.

The doors open at 5 p.m. and the event will begin at 6 p.m. For more information about the event call Pascuzzi at 289-241-2386.

A watchful eye will be necessary when dealing with your reputation, status and getting ahead. You'll face competition that will not play fair. Your precision and dedication will help you overcome anyone who tries to mess with you. Honor and glory will be your ticket to victory. 5, 13, 22, 24, 31, 37, 46.

LEO (March 23-April 19): Be careful not to push someone who is likely to push back. Be willing to work alongside your competition and you will gain respect. Let your discipline and energetic enthusiasm shine and you'll be hard to beat. ★★

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't give in to personal conflict. Take care of business before you opt to have fun. Reassure those who put demands on you that you will take part when the time is right. Offering alternative incentives will lead to help, not hindrance. ★★ ★★

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't let emotional matters cloud your vision. Make a point to learn something that will help you move in a positive direction and improve your chances of getting ahead. A business partnership will lead to an interesting alternative. ★★

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An old friend will play a role in a creative endeavor you want to pursue. Offering to help one another will pay off and make your quest for success much easier. Romance will enhance your day. ★★ ★★

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't leave anything unfinished or you will face complaints. Someone will be eager to make you look bad. Add to your comfort at home and make sure to take the time to enjoy your hobbies and friends. ★★ ★★

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't give in to someone's demands or pushiness. Stand your ground and make it clear what you believe is best for you. Put your thoughts on paper and draw up an agreement if necessary. Better to be safe than sorry. ★★ ★★

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Recognize and market your skills. What you have to offer can bring in extra cash and change the way people view you. Home improvements should be geared toward making a space conducive to getting a project up and running. ★★ ★★

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Know what you want, but go about getting it in a diplomatic manner. Being too forceful will invite arguments and opposition. Try to attract opportunity by offering incentives to the people you need help from. ★★ ★★

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date in 1949, Newfoundland became Canada's 10th province. Joey Smallwood, who led the drive to join Canada, became Newfoundland's first premier and was known as Canada's only living Father of Confederation. Smallwood served as premier until 1972. He died in 1991, a week before his 95th birthday.

In 1932, Ford Motor Co. unveiled its V8 engine.

In 1993, actor Brandon Lee died after a freak accident on the set of the movie "The Crow." Lee had been shot with a prop gun that was supposed to fire blanks. He was 28.

In Loving Memory

KATHLEEN KONINGS

April 7, 1949 - April 3, 2014

Mommy,

It has been 2 years
since you passed away
Daddy and I still recall that very day
I hide my tears when I say your name.
The pain in my heart is still the same.
God knows I would walk a million miles to see you and you would too.
Even though I smile and seem carefree.
There's no one who misses you more than me.

Forever missed by daughter and best friend Karl,
Daddy, Christopher & family.

Bea Bellah

In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, who passed away April 3, 2015

God knew that she was suffering
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine".
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so far,
Some day we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.

Lovingly remembered by her husband and son

Kathy Konings

In loving memory of a very dear friend Kathy, who passed away April 3rd, 2014

A special person, a special face
Someone I loved and can't replace
Never selfish, always kind
These are the memories you left behind

Sadly missed by Charlene Teal
